COURAGE
By Edgar A. Guest

This is courage: To remain
Brave and patient under pain;
Cool and calm and firm to stay
In the presence of dismay;
Not to flinch when foes attack,
Even though you're beaten back;
Still to cling to what is right,
When the wrong possesses might.

This is courage: To be true
To the best men see in you;
To remember, tempest-tossed,
Not to whimper "All is lost!"
But to battle to the end
While you still have strength to spend;
Not to cry that hope is gone
While you've life to carry on.

This is courage: To endure
Hurt and loss you cannot cure;
Patiently and undismayed,
Facing life still unafraid;
Glad to live and glad to take
Bravely for your children's sake,
Burdens they would have to bear
If you fled and ceased to care.

Some time ago a man—hurrying to notify a friend where to get a job, found the friend dead by his own hand, because of despondency over not being able to secure employment.

Sometimes it seems utterly impossible to hang on and not give up; that almost anything is preferable to an existing condition, and yet—the thing to do—is to hang on and keep agoing.

There is an old, old song which goes—"Each victory will help you, one other to win."

Every time we grit our teeth and refuse to give up; refuse to listen to discouragement, we have strengthened ourselves just that much. Each time we take a fresh grip on faith and confidence, we have pulled ourselves up the ladder of success another round.

Whipped spirits! We find them everywhere; along the avenues; in the universities, out on the ranches in the mines, along Main Street.

It is the persistent developing of the state of mind that refuses to be whipped that eventually makes us more than conquerors. An unconquerable spirit is absolutely indisspensable.

A man who had lived his life among the rough and ready lumber jacks, where fist fights were common occurrences, and who had the reputation of never having been whipped, said—"The truth is, I've been whipped many times but the other fellow never found it out. I just kept on fighting regardless of how much I wanted to give up, until the other fellow was whipped."

It gives one fresh stimulus when we know that defeat is unreal. Defeat is merely an admittance of weakness. A condition, we, ourselves, bring about.

Our big job is to overcome fear and all the other destructive emotions. We can rise above these emotions any time we care to exercise the power which is ours.

The world is full of opportunities for those who have acquired sufficient faith and confidence in themselves to go out and demonstrate their fitness and ability. Thinking success; talking success, brings success. Successful people like to mingle with and do business with other successful people. Weakness has no part to play in life.

"Ah!" you exclaim,—"but my case is different." And in reply I say—not a bit; there are hundreds of cases just like yours. You are no exception by any means.

When it seems that you have reached the end of your rope; that you just can't go on, go to the nearest hospital and walk thru the public wards and study the faces of the men and women you see, fighting for their life. Fighting for one more chance to go out into the world and enjoy the sunshine. Sit down and talk with these people with broken legs and arms and heads. Your little problems will fade away into thin air and you will go forth from the hispital a new creature, with an entirely different point of view.

A. P. GIANNINI COMMENDS THE WEEKLY PAPERS

"Jealousy Guards the Interests of the Small Town In A Way No Other Medium Can Do," Says Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Bank of America.

Mr. A. P. Giannini, who created and became the guiding genius of the largest banking institution in the west—and the fourth largest bank in the United States—through immeasurable foresight, adherence to principle and an insatiable passion for hard work, has been asked by Stanley Bavier, editor of the Truckee Republican, for an expression of his personal opinion as to the value of a small town newspaper.

It was felt that whatever the chairman of the board of directors of the Bank of America, with its 410 branches in 243 California communities, might have to say, would be particularly interesting to the readers of the Truckee Republican Here is Mr. Giannini's reply:

BANK OF AMERICA
San Francisco

Mr. Stanley Bavier,
Managing Editor-Owner,
The Truckee Republican,
Truckee, California.
My dear Mr. Bavier:

You ask for my personal opinion as to the value of small town newspapers. Perhaps I can best answer you by stating that the Bank of America relies upon three hundred twenty newspapers of this state, of which, of course, the majority are in small towns, to carry its message to the people of California.

Our advertising is in the newspapers week in and week out, a policy which we have pursued for over seventeen years. During the first seven months of 1932, when conditions were at their worst and many other advertisers were curtailing their expenditures, our appropriation was increased. We are more than satisfied with the results, both for ourselves and for California. We have added over $51,000,000 in deposits with 130,000 new depositors.

The small town newspaper is a part of the community which it serves and is naturally interested in the welfare of that community. It jealously guards the interests of the small town in a way that no other medium can do. This fact is recognized by its subscribers and therein lies its value to the advertiser.

These are a few of the reasons why we, of the Bank of America, always consider the newspaper as the major medium for our advertising.

Cordially yours,
A. P. GIANNINI,
Chairman

Poppy Pleas

By ROSE BENNINGTON

Just spare me a bit of your time, Sir,
And I'll tell you the reason why
I'm pleading today for your dime, Sir.
A worthier cause you can't buy!

We help out the crippled and maimed, Sir.
The proceeds from sales go to them.
So make us feel proud, not ashamed, Sir!
They've chosen us, blossom and stem.

To stand as their symbol of right, Sir;
To honor the ones gone ahead;
Give surcease from pain and make light, Sir,
For the army of living dead.

Our shade is the essence of men, Sir.
Sad reminder of war's ghastly spurts.
So dig in your pocket and then, Sir,
Buy some poppies, and buy till it hurts.

FISHING SEASON ON RIVER OPENS WITH A BANG

Over 500 Trout Caught By Fishermen On Opening Day Last Monday

Did you go fishing last Monday? If you didn't, you were one of the few who stayed home.

From the first streak of dawn over in the East until the shadows of sunset, a steady stream of fishermen tried their luck on the Truckee River. All day long cars went up and down the highways with fish poles sticking out.

According to one of the United States Government men who was here to check up on marked trout, there were over 500 fish caught along the Truckee River between Truckee and Floriston on Opening Day. Strange as it may seem, not one of the 40,000 marked rainbow trout put into the river from the rearing pond last fall, was caught. Whether the marked trout are hookshy or have gone down the river into Nevada, is not known. The government inspector is of the belief that they will show up later in the season.

The editor of the Republican was provided with a nice fish supper on Opening Day by Mr. A. Bianchi, local jeweler and veteran fisherman of this region. Mr. Bianchi was one of the first fishermen in town to get on the river last Monday, and when he came home he had ten fine trout to show as evidence of his fishing ability.

The Truckee Sport Shop window had some fine exhibits of trout caught during the Opening Day, and the window attracted considerable attention.

Dave Cabona, the master fisherman of this region, caught three beautiful three pound trout.

Rail Bargains Announced Over Memorial Day

Plans for Dollar Day excursions over the Memorial Day week end May 26 to 30, were announced today by the Southern Pacific Company.

The transportation bargains for the five-day period will be on the cent-a-mile basis, featuring 100 miles for $1, according to company officials.

Special attention was called to the fact that the low fares may be used by persons planning to attend the Corbett-McLarnin welterweigh championship bout in Los Angeles, May 29.

The return limit for roundtrips will be June 6, it was stated.

COUNTY HOME RULE QUESTION WILL BE SETTLED ON JUNE 27

Supervisors Would Have Power To Regulate Salaries of County and Township Officers

The question of absolute home rule for Nevada county will be decided by voters of California at the special election to be called by Governor Rolph June 27.

Among the propositions on the ballot at that election is a proposed constitutional amendment that would confer upon the county board of supervisors the power to regulate salaries of county and township officers.

At present this power is in the hands of the state legislature under what is commnoly known as the County Government Act. This means that at every session hundreds of bills are introduced, adding clerks and deputies in various county offices, or increasing or decreasing their salaries.

The system has proved to be clumsy and indirect. So at the present legislative session the California State Chamber of Commerce sponsored a reform measure introduced by Senator J. I. Wagy, Bakersfield.

It empowers the supervisors 'to regulate the number, method of appointment, terms of office or employment, and compensation of all deputies, assistants and employees with the exception of county auditors."

The salary of any officer could not be increased after election or during his term of office, the measure provides.

"This clearly defines and locates a responsibility which in actual practice is now shared by the legislature, the supervisors and the grand juries," said Senator Wagy.

"The board of supervisors of each county is responsible to the people but under the present law cannot be held accountable for the payroll which constitutes one of the largest items of county expenditure."

Another constitutional amendment by Assemblyman Ford A. Chatters of Lndsay would go a step farther and authorize the board of supervisors not only to set salaries but to appoint the county officers whose salaries are fixed.

Government Requests Data On Marked Fish Caught In Truckee

Allan C. Taft and Dr. P. R. Needham of the Museum of Natural History at Stanford University, have been in town for several days posting signs along the Truckee River, requesting all fishermen who catch any rainbow trout which have been marked by the removal of the upper or lower fins, to report the catching of such trout to the Truckee Sport Shop, so that such information may be forwarded to the U. S. Department of Fisheries.

According to a letter received by Stanley Bavier, editor of the Truckee Republican, from John L. Farley Executive Officer of the California Fish and Game Department, "Exact knowledge of the migration of these marked fish will be of great assistance in developing the proper program of building up fishing in the Truckee River."

All fishermen are urged to cooperate with the State Fish and Game Department, and give the requested information to the Truckee Sport Shop.

The marked rainbow trout in question, were released from the rearing pond at the Fly Casting club last Fall.

SPREADING PUBLIC SERVICE

When a prominent citizen died recently in a middle-western city, it was discovered that at the time of his death he was serving as director, manager or trustee of several railroads, factories, colleges and universities, and a group of other interests, reaching a total of thirty. He was a man of great ability and honesty, with a high ideal of public service. Apparently the community recognized his qualities and made full use of them. Perhaps it made too many demands on his time and strength. A preacher in the community writes to a newspaper editor as follows:

"Why load on a willing. public-spirited man all these burdens? It is a bad habit we have fallen into, unfair to the public and to the man himself. There are plenty of younger men who would eagerly take these positions and give full time to them. Is it not time to distribute responsibility more widely, and spare our strong men the fearful wear and tear which ends their careers all too suddenly?"

Experience and judgment are wanted in such positions, of course, and they are not always found in young men. Conspicuous ability, once it is turned to public service, is perhaps best awarded by increased opportunities for such service. That recognition and opportunity are all the reward high-minded leaders ask. Yet it would be wiser for them and perhaps for the community if the opportunities were passed around. The way to cultivate ability and responsibility in young citizens is to give them public work to do.

LOWER RAIL FARES

Several Southern railroads, slashing passenger rates with the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, may be starting a landslide.

The cuts are impressive. The Louisville, and Nashville, Chatanooga and St. Louis, the Mobile and Ohio and the Georgia Central, lower their basic rate for coach passengers from 3.6 cents a mile to 2 cents, and the same basic charge on parlor and sleeping cars to 3 cents. They also eliminate the Pullman surcharge of one-half the price of a Pullman ticket.

This change is for an experimental purpose of six months. It is intended as a drive against the competition of motor buses and private automobiles. The result is hard to prophesy in such abnormal times. It need cause no surprise, however, if the railroads get more revenue from the low fare, with scarcely any more operating cost, than they have been getting from the high fare.

Other railroads also recognize the need of fare deflation to match deflated incomes and prices. They are inclined, however, to cling to the basic rates, while gaining additional patronage through cheaper mileage and commutation tickets. This method is more flexible, but would not help the general public which does not buy its transportation wholesale.

BUYING ANTI-AMERICAN

An effective answer to the "Buy American" doctrine preached so widely in this country for the last year or so is given by the mayor of Cleveland. He vetoes a resolution by the city council urging citizens to buy only American made products, presenting these three reasons:

"As a great industrial community, Cleveland is constantly searching for markets abroad. Scores of our manufacturers in normal times export a great volume of their total output.

"In the days before the depression Cleveland's overseas commerce reached the stupendous figure of $300,000,000 a year, or approximately $1,000,000 for each working day. Twenty-five per cent of this $300,000,000 represented wages paid to employees. These wages of $75,000,000 furnished full-time employment to an average of 50,000 Clevelanders.

"Certainly we should take no action at this or any other time which would deprive these 50,000 Cleveland workers of their right to work."

The argument applies in other industrial communities. and also rural communities. The form of boycott urged in the familiar slogan seems to mean the opposite of what it says. Such discrimination is un-American in spirit and anti-American in effect.

THE UNINVITED GUEST

POLITICAL PARADE

By Homer L. Roberts

FEUD. The Rolph-Inman feud, which flared up anew during the closing week of the legislature, is by no means ended.

Homer Roberts

The governor advised friends confidentially that he has by no means "spilled everything" he has against the fiery Sacramento senator.

Inman, on the other hand, indicated that the battle may play an important part in next year's Rolph-Merriam campaign for governor, when he shouted to the senate:

"Where are the friends of the Governor now? They're gone, because they were too decent to put up with his dirty political methods. This fight has just begun."

DELAYED. Old-timers at the state capitol could not recall anything in legislative history to equal the scourging that Governor Rolph received on the floor of the senate.

For two hours, Senators J. M. Inman, Herbert C. Jones, San Jose; W. P. Rich, Marysville, and others, poured out their bitter castigation of Rolph and his administration.

The governor was accused of hiring plain-clothes detectives to "shadow" the senate investigation committee, and delve into the past life of its members.

WHERE TIME STANDS STILL

The little island of Inishturk rises abruptly out of the Atlantic, like the lumpy green heights of a partially submerged mountain, as indeed it probably is. It lies out from that part of the mainland, perhaps the most beautiful in Ireland, where the Connemara mountains are piled in a tumbling heap of purple splendor; and, with this scene before it, Inishturk has the air of an artist stepping back a few paces the better to admire a masterpiece of beauty.

It is a beauty that is ever changing, for Connemara's weather is fickle; and one can sit on the highest hilltop of Inishturk and look over to the mountains, clear-cut in a blaze of sunshine, with the waves writhing like snow-white serpents at their feet. Then, slowly, a cloud looms up, passes over Inishturk, but spreads itself like a gray cloak over the mountains, blotting out the sunshine; until suddenly the sunbeams flash out once more on the sloping bases and, creeping up the mountainsides, they chase away the clouds till nothing of them remains but a few trailing scarves of mist.

The island is wrapped in a simple quietude unbroken by sound of wheels, for roadways there are none and the steep rocky paths that climb the hillsides are only wide enough for a woman driving home her cow, a man urging on his laden donkey, or a lad riding saddleless, his horse slung with creels of turf.

Out of the wind-swept hilltops the only sounds are the occasional lonely bleat of a sheep, the gurgling of a peaty brook hurrying over rounded amber stones, the mournful cry of a sea bird wheeling overhead, and always the dull roar of the waves as they lash against the buttress of cliffs protecting that side of the island which faces the Atlantic. The other side, facing the mainland, is sheltered by these lonely hilltops from the worst fury of the ocean gales. It slopes down from the heights to a low coastline where the sea, quieter here, laps the shining yellow sand of little coves or pours into deep-cleft inlets where it gently sways the seaweed which, far beneath, gleams through the limpid water like streaming golden hair.

Across the sea, on one side, rises the pointed form of Clare Island; on the other, the neighboring island of Inishboffin lies with its backbone ridge of cottages silhouetted against the sky line, while nearer, the waves break against a few green streaks of islets. Several cottages cluster together down beside a tiny harbor, the rest lie scattered about the hillslopes which in summer are fragrant with a profusion of wild flowers, while the moister valleys are smothered in a foam of creamy meadow-sweet pierced through with spikes of flaming purple loosestrife.

Life is simple in these two-or-three roomed cabins. A turf fire burns on a flat stone hearth, the blue smoke curling up a big open chimney and sometimes coming out in puffs into the kitchen. A sooty bar is suspended from the chimney with a hook on which to hang a kettle or the big iron caldron in which potatoes are boiled for the family, for the pigs and for the hens that, with an easy friendliness, come pecking in at the kitchen door. A shallow iron pot with a lid does duty for an oven, and in this the woman of the house bakes big rounds of delicious crusty bread made with buttermilk. When she wants water, she takes her can and crosses the fields to a spring well where she fills it with the crystal water that bubbles up ice cold and pure. Once a week she rolls an old churn into the middle of the stone floor and swishes the dasher up and down through the milk. Always, from morning to night, she is busy.

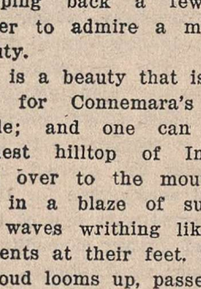
The man of the house cuts the turf out on the bogs and minds his sheep up on the mountainside; he mows his meadows, plants his potatoes, and sometimes a field of oats; he takes his boat and rows out to fish or to lay down his lobster pots. In the long winter evenings, by the light of an oil lamp hung on the whitewashed wall, he sits mending his fishing nets or making baskets from the willow rods growing by the kitchen door; while his wife turns her spinning wheel or knits into her stockings and jerseys the wool which she has spun.

Once a week, if the weather is fine, Inishturk receives tidings from the outside world when a little sailing boat with a lean bag of mails slips into the bay. Sitting around one of the kitchen fires, the boatmen exchange the news before sailing off and leaving the island to settle down once more to the calm of its quiet, simple life.

THE SPRING STYLES ARE BEST ADAPTED TO SLIM FORMS

By JACQUELINE HUNT

DO NOT invest much money in pretty summer clothes until you have done all that you can to make your complexion and your body worthy of them. The most expensive gown cannot be attractive on a figure that slumps and sags. On the other hand, the least expensive dress, tastefully chosen and becomingly worn, can make you look like a princess.



MISS HUNT

This summer's styles were planned for the youthful, slender-waisted woman. Most of the styles are boyish, although there is a wider choice than usual. In general, shoulders are broad (therefore, your own must be very straight and dignified). Waistlines are where they belong and skirts are either straight or very simply cut so your hips must be well under control. With these facts before you, you should set out to adjust your figure before you buy your nicest summer clothes.

Straight, dignified shoulders do not mean rigid shoulders. You want a straight, flexible back and easy, flexible shoulder muscles. Train them so they can do their job easily and properly before you try to keep them in place. Here is a good exercise for that purpose:

Stand in an easy, natural position, with your feet about fourteen inches apart. Now counting, move the shoulders slowly forward as far as they will go on 1, move them upward on the count of 2, backward on 3, and sharply down on 4. This exercise will take out any rigidity that improper carriage might have created.

A strong, flexible back and strong abdominal muscles are just as much a part of good posture as strong, well carried shoulders. They must all work together, so this exercise was especially planned to help all of them at once. Lie down on a quilt or mat on the floor. Roll over flat on your stomach, head turned to one side, arms extended at right angles to your body, feet together and toes resting on the floor.

Now bring your arms and shoulders as far backward as you possibly can, breathing deeply and raising your head and chest off the floor at the same time. Keep the legs straight, and using the back and thigh muscles, raise them slightly off the floor so that your weight rests on your thighs and abdomen. Hold that position while you count five. Relax for another count of five, then repeat. Five times to begin with, and later, ten or fifteen. After awhile you should be able to touch the backs of your hands together behind you.

If your hips are broad in spite of all you can do to reduce them do not worry too much about the matter. Concentrate the decoration or unusual touches above your waistline. Wear interesting necklines and sleeves, and perhaps touches of costume jewelry. If your tummy is too large, get a good foundation garment and be sure that there are no buttons or other decorations on your costume in this region. For upper arms that are too fat, flattering collars that conceal them and gay bracelets to call attention to your wrists will make you look as though the fashions were designed for you alone.

Your Good Health

Enjoy Vacation Trip by Planning Routine for Diet and Rest

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

THE excitement of planning a journey so often reaches its climax in contemplation of what we are going to see or the people we hope to meet. Too rarely are we really concerned in what condition of health we shall greet the anticipated pleasures. Certainly, we should budget our physical resources as well as our financial allowance and especially should we take into the most careful consideration the best way, by diet and sufficient rest, to keep ourselves in prime condition. In these days of easy transportation, travel ought to be more than a summer's pastime. And travel might be made more general than it has been, if we were to make more of a study of its hygienic value. The stimulus of change, of new ideas, or diversion, and of fresh enthusiasm would bring us back to our duties with a new rating of efficiency. And don't put it off too long if the project is at all possible financially.

A DELIGHTFUL woman of my acquaintance, cultured and widely read, had treasured a longed-for trip around the world, for years. Not until she had been retired from a responsible position on account of age would she admit it possible to take the dreamed-of journey. As was to be feared, she broke down in a distant land, spent her funds for hospital care and was sent home with her dream only half realized. Of course, her syster had been accustomed to a quiet, regulated scheme of existence. The excitement, strange foods, over-exertion were too much for her.

I AM particularly concerned for those who will set forth in this summer vacation for a tour of varying distance. I am recalling for their possible benefit, a trip undertaken not many months ago by a part of my family, who had tried out various modes of travel and were planning for a real out-of-doors jaunt. They wanted to cook, eat, sleep, and live outside of walls. Many others will find this method the only one possible in these strenuous times and there is no reason why care and judgment cannot make it the happiest way to go. There were four in the group I have mentioned with a range in age of more than fifty years.

IF ONE or more of the party really likes to roll in a blanket and sleep on the ground, consult your nearest scout troop for the best way to make Mother Earth a comfortable resting place. With careful attention to details, many will find a simply arranged vacation trip not just the only one possible, btu with due precaution, such a journey can be made the very best and most enjoyable.

TAHOE REGION NEWS

By "SWANEE"

An interesting story comes from the south end of the lake. The incident took place at the little school house near the Y known as the Lawson school. It was a right cold morning and little Margaret Chapelle was making a fire to warm the room. Glancing at the window she was terrified to see a huge black bear raised on his hind legs glowering into the room. An alarm was soon raised and a Mr. Burnett and Walter Hansen armed with guns took up the pursuit of the intruder who fled into the woods. A note of humor was added to the affair when it was learned later that the men who had trailed the bear for some distance were themselves being tracked by the bear, who had circled about thru the brush and started out again after his pursuers. Strangely, neither met the other during the odd adventure and so Mr. Bruin, whose tracks in the snow measured 12 inches, is still at large somewhere in the locality of Tallac. He also looked into the windows of the Walter Hansen home there.

Another incident was reported by Arthur Wyllie, who resides with his family on the Seaborn Place at Fallen Leaf. On Friday night their dog barked incessantly nearly all night. They thought this unusual but not until the next morning did they fully understand it all. Across the front porch of their home they found in the snow the tracks of a large cougar who had also, presumably, the aspirations of a "peeping tom." He, too, is still at large.

Ed Lathe, who has spent the winter months with his family in Oakland is a visitor at Tahoe, having arrived on Tuesday. He is spending some time with the Henry Soll family of Pine Lodge.

On Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Chris Nielsen of Sunnyside were hosts at a delightful dinner, their guests including Mr. and Mrs, Jack Matthews and Mr. and Mrs. Si Pierson and daughter Blanche. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Mayfield joined the party and bridge was enjoyed by all. High scores were captured by Mrs. Chris Nielsen and Jack Matthews.

Mrs. Clarence Collins and daughter June arrived in town last week. They are packing their effects preparatory to having them shipped to Weed where Mr. Collins is now regularly employed with the S. P.

Swansons on Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. Bear, who are regular visitors at Tahoe each year, returned on the 10th from a two months motor trip thru the East. Leaving San Francisco on March 14th, they followed the Southern route which is beautiful at this season of the year with orchards and flowers in bloom. Their first official stop was in Michigan, then Redding, Penn. and next Chicago. A contemplated shopping and sight seeing tour there was cut short as the city was blanketed with black overhanging clouds and an unceasing deluge of rain. At Omaha Mr. Bear had the exciting pleasure of visiting his brother, whom he had not seen for over 31 years. Returning home by way of Salt Lake they encountered snow, rain, wind and floods. One town thru which they passed had been visited with a rain storm which sent the season's rainfall up to 5 inches over night. Highways, city streets and fields were flooded and many roads were impassable. Landslides and washouts were numerous and travel was hazardous. After traveling over 8,000 miles under such trying conditions, without so much as changing a tire, they neared Verdi when suddenly a huge rock loosened by rain and seepage, rolled down the embankment directly into the path of their car. Unable to stop n time they crashed into it, tearing a large hole in the crankcase. A tow car had to be sent from Truckee and the car towed into the garage for repairs, an unfortunate ending to such an otherwise interesting trip.

On Friday Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heller, Miss Pearl Chilson and Mr and Mrs. Scott Cochran enjoyed a social evening and refreshments with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Viljoen of Meeks Bay. Mr. Viljoen thrilled his guests all evening with interesting tales of his adventures while a resident of South Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Pomin of Tahoe, accompanied by friends, were victims of an unfortunate acicdent on Sunday night near the Nevada-California State line. Their car was struck by a motorist coming from the opposite direction at a fast rate of speed. No one was injured miraculously, but their car was badly scratched and dented.

Little Bozo, pedigreed pet bull dog of the Carl Bechdolt family of Tahoe Inn, is no more. In a fight with two large dogs Monday with overwhelming odds against him, he lost his life. Anyone who had ever frequented the Inn knew and loved little Bozo and we all regret deeply his untimely end and the great loss we know he will be to his little playmates.

NORDEN NEWS

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by several members of the Sierra card club early this week when they convened at the Libby residence on Sierra Heights, many members enjoyed themselves solving intricate Jig Saw puzzles while others played bridge and whist, the highlights of the evening being centered around Noble Robinson and Mrs. Clarence Libby who were paired with Clarence Libby and Elmer "Honey" Eversult at pinochle. After several games at which the Robinson-Mrs. Libby team showered the opposition with defeat, a consolation prize was bestowed upon the losers of a book on "How To Play Pinochle," much to the chagrin of Libby and Eversult. Late in the evening a tempting luncheon was served. Date of the next gathering was not decided upon, but is expected to be held at some member's home in the very near future.

The car is pleasing to the eye and fine for comfort over the Sierra grades and Snyder plans to make good use of his new possession by taking a trip to Oregon soon. May 9, 1933

A great thing has occurred amongst us. We have made a complete turn-around, and at last America's face is toward the future.

Three years---1929 to 1932---we Americans looked backward. All our old financial and political machinery was geared to pull us out of the depression by the same door through which we entered. We thought it simply a case of going back the way we came. It failed. We now realize that the way out is forward---through it.

Thanks for that belongs to President Roosevelt. Inauguration Day he turned the Ship of State around. Having observed the failure of sincere efforts to haul us back the way we came, he designed a new method---new political and financial machinery---to pull us out the way we are going---forward. He is clearing international obstacles out of the way; he does not stand in awe of tariffs. The people begin to feel that he does not take advice from the "interests"; that he has courage and loyalty to work for one supreme interest only---the welfare of the American people. That is a big achievement for two months in office.

And now we all look to what is coming; we grow less and less concerned with what is behind. We are looking for a hand-hold on the haul rope. Every man wants to do what he can, and all he can.

The best thing I can do for the Country is to create industry by building good motor cars. If I knew anything better to do, I would do it. Industry must be my contribution. Motor cars must face ahead to the future, like everything else. They are so much a part of the Nation's daily life that if they lag behind they hold the Country back.

Nevada County Farm Population Estimated at 1822

The back to the farm movement is making itself felt in California.

In every county of the state persons who left the farms prior to the economic depression are coming back, bringing their families with them. Moreover, the present farm population is staying, in the opinion of state agricultural experts in Sacramento.

"Annual estimates of the United States department of agriculture place the farm population of California at 600,000, as compared with a rural, non-farm population of 1,000,000," a state study says.

The estimates placed the farm population of Nevada county at 1,822 and the rural resident, not on farms, at 4,957.

Rapid depletion of relief funds in towns and cities was ascribed as one of the factors in increasing the farm bound movement of persons who have no city relatives.

"In normal times there is always a farmward movement in California composed of older people who had saved against the day of becoming too old to work in the city, and who bought small farms in outlying districts where they could 'stretch' their funds and spend their declining years in small-scale farming activities," the state survey said.

"This group has been considerably augmented in the last three years."

Unemployment has also served to drive many city workers back to places of refuge on farms or parents or relatives.

"The estimates did not take into account subsistence gardening projects which have been set up in many cities as a means of easing relief burdens," the report continued. "Few city people doing this type of gardening have actually moved onto the land they are cultivating. Thus such gardens could not be classed as 'farms.'

"A similar increase in subsistence gardening has been reported for many smaller cities and towns in California, but few of these producers sell anything from their gardens except where they raise an unexpected surplus."

A FISHY FISH STORY

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 18—(CPS)—It was just too bad that Rose Mitchell happened by while cannery workers were playfully tossing fish at one another.

One of the fish struck her in the eye. So she took her complaint to the industrial accident commission.

The accident was held to have been caused by the frolicking workers rather than to the nature of the employment, so compensation for the injury was denied.

ANNUAL SESSIONS OF STATE LEGISLATURE BEING PROPOSED

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 18—(CPS)—Annual sessions of the California state legislature, as provided under a constitutional amendment by Assemblyman Frederick Roberts, Los Angeles, will be decided by the state senate.

Roberts would convene the legislature on the first Monday after the 15th of January in odd numbered years, to introduce bills and act on emergency measures. The session would last 60 days.

After this a recess would be taken until the same Monday in the even numbered year, to give final passage to the measures.

CONCERNING BULLS— AND BULLFROGS—AND

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 18—(CPS)—Weird things often happen to a bill on its way through the legislature.

For example, the Lion measure limiting the length and number of bullfrogs that may be caught in a week.

Senator John McColl of Redding, proposed to strike out the word "frog" from the bill. As amended the act would have referred to "red-legged jumping bulls."

"It would be a great break for the dairy industry, Senator Edgar Stow of Santa Barbara has a cow," said McColl.

"Yeah? And Senator Inman has a bull," retorted Stow.

On the vote the "ayes" outshouted the "noes," but Lieutenant Governor Frank F. Merriam ruled the amendment defeated.

'Why Worry About Balancing Budget' Says State Treas.

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(California Press Service Writer)
Special to The Truckee Republican

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 18—(CPS)—Why all the worry about balancing California's state budget?

Worse things could happen, according to State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson, who was the first person to raise a warning figure over the condition of state finances 2 years ago.

Even if the legislature doesn't return July 17 to enact new tax measures in order to provide the required $50,000,000 in additional revenue, the state will manage to struggle along, Johnson says.

"The so-called Riley-Stewart plan to be voted upon during the recess, has nothing to do with the budget," he explained. "The task of raising tax revenues is left to the legislature."

But what would happen if nothing were done at all—if the legislature failed to agree upon a tax program.

"Why, the state would go right on registering warrants," said the state treasurer. "That would be fa preferable to the ad valorem tax It is my judgment that California can maintain her budget obligations on a registered warrant basis until such time as our present tax program can produce sufficient revenue to equalize costs with income

"California's 4½ per cent warrants would pass current to the advantage of any other state or national obligation.

"The question has arisen as to the ability of California to meet any contracted debt. It is my belief that this state can extend its credit in an amount equal to and in excess of its present budget.

"California has heretofore been very reserved in using its credit for emergency purposes. Special funds can and will be diverted for emergency use. This money will be restored from our present sources of revenue. We must have faith in the future, and having faith believe that industrial, agricultural and commercial activities of California will revive."

Joe Hasn't Any Eyebrows Any More, Because—

DOWNIEVILLE, Cal., May 18—(CPS)—Joe Mottini hasn't any eyebrows any more—all because he tried to find the plug in the vacuum gas tank of his car with a match.

Mottini's car had bucked all the way from Sierra City to within a few miles of here. Lacking a flashlight, he decided to risk a match. He lit one, and peeked in.

SAN FERNANDO—(CPS) — The price of a suit of clothes is asked by John Mellein of Van Nuys in a suit against the city. His suit was ruined, he said, when he fell into a hole in the street.

The resulting explosion cost Mottini his eyebrows and eyelashes, and but for fast work with a robe, might have cost him the car.

HITLER CONSIDERED MENACE TO PEACE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 18—(CPS)—As long as Germany's chancellor, Adolph Hitler, is in power he will be a "constant menace to the peace of Europe."

This was the assertion of Rabbi Norman M. Goldburg, chaplain of the state assembly, at a meeting here this week.

He declared disarmament will be made difficult and even economic agreements almost impossible. The rabbi contended that Hitler is not representative of the German people and sooner or later his policies will cause his downfall.

Rabbi Goldburg characterized as absurd the elimination of Jews from Olympic games competition, Germany's best tennis player, for example, being a Jew.

WHEN you are looking for ideas for economical meals that are at the same time light and interesting, plan the menus around a mixed grill. Introduce the spring-like touches in the salads, garnishes and desserts.

For your mixed grill buy four good-sized lamb kidneys, eight slices of bacon and four fat link sausages. Cut the kidneys into halves and saute with the sausauges until partly cooked. Then arrange on wire skewers, one slice of bacon doubled, one-half kidney sprinkled with salt and paprika, a sausage, then another piece of kidney and bacon. Preheat your broiler oven with the pan and rack in position for ten minutes, then arrange the skewers in place. Grill, turning frequently until the bacon is cooked and serve on triangles of buttered toast.

Grilled Bananas

A second grill combination is a good suggestion for a Friday luncheon or supper. Preheat the broiler, then arrange the buttered and seasoned fillets of any whie fish on the rach, with the bananas that have been rolled in lemon juice and flour and then wrapped in bacon. Hold the bacon in place with toothpicks. Halves of fresh tomatoes may be buttered and seasoned and broiled at the same time. Turn the fish and the wrapped bananas frequently until evenly browned on all sides.

Spring Salad

For a spring salad wash and drain one-half head of romaine, one cup of dandelion greens, a few scallions, six radishes and a few sprigs of watercress. Separate the green in a cold salad bowl that has been rubbed with garlic, chop the scallions fine, slice the radishes thinly and shred the watercress. Blend the ingredients thoroughly and dress with this mixture, well blended: ane-half teaspoon mustard, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon paprika, four tablespoons salad oil, two tablespoons vinegar, one teaspoon catsup and one chopped hard-cooked egg. Mix the salad and dressing and serve from the large bowl.

Rhubarb Shortcake

Rhubarb shortcake will appeal to all who like the flavor of this spring vegetable. Mix thoroughly two cups of flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt and two tablespoons sugar. Put three tablespoons of shortening into this mixture and add two well-beaten eggs and one-half cup milk Bake in a layer plan in a hot oven for ten or twelve minutes. Split and butter the layers while very hot. Spread with this filling:

Wash and dice two cups of rhubarb. Stew with one-half cup sugar, one-half cup maple sugar and one stick of cinnamon until the rhubarb is tender and the syrup is very thick. Place the rhubarb mixture between the layers of the shortcake and top with whipped cream or additional rhubarb syrup.

NEW BILL WOULD REDUCE SALARIES UTILITY OFFICALS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 18—(CPS)—Public utilities in California will continue to pay fabuously high salaries to their officials.

A bill by Assemblyman Lucius Powers, Fresno, designed to reduce these salaries and compel officials to cease making donations for propaganda and charging the cost to consumers, fell six votes short of passage in the assembly.

Powers estimated consumers in California would have saved $4,000,000 a year if his bill had passed.

BILL TO PROTECT DOGS DEFEATED

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 18—(CPS)—For the third consecutive session, the California state legislature has refused protection to dogs that ride on running boards of automobiles.

The senate rejected a bill by Assemblyman Frank Martin, Altadena newspaperman, requiring that all motorists provide framework if they wish to carry dogs on the running board.

Because no member of the senate would sponsor the bill, Martin took the unprecendented means of writing a letter to the upper house, urging its passage.

was quickly passed around, and the senate chambers were packed to capacity.

SAVED. Earlier in the week Roland A. Vandegrift, director of finance, was the target of an attack by fellow officials.

Hearing that Vandegrift proposed still further cuts in the governor's budget, various directors and constitutional officers held an indignation meeting.

Emerging from the session, Vandegrift's face was red, but his job was still secure. There were no cuts in the budget, so all sides scored a victory.

SNOOK. Returning from Washington, D. C., where he ostensibly went to discuss the spray residue problem, Frank G. Snook, formerly chief of the division of motor vehicles arrived just in time to see the senate defeat the free primary bill.

Snook's real mission to Washington was to give Senator Hiram W Johnson a report on the political picture in California.

If it had passed, the primary change would have given Johnson an "edge" for reelection next year as it would have permitted a voter to choose any party ballot he desired at the polls.

AD VALOREM. Although California will finish the present fiscal year $10,000,000 "in the red," it is doubtful if an ad valorem tax will be levied.

The state can borrow money from special funds until the legislature meets in July to devise new sources of tax revenue. As a matter of fact the state is operating on borrowed money now.

SNAPSHOTS. Employees of the state board of equalization may stump the state in behalf of the Riley tax plan, under terms of a resolution by Assemblyman Charles W. Lyon, Los Angeles . . . Joy riding by state officers in state cars was forbidden, under another bill . . . Senator Arthur H. Breed, Oakland, may be credited for stopping Governor Rolph's proposed radio broadcast of his attack against Senator Inman . . . Lawmakers returning in July will receive neither pay nor expenses . . . But save your tears . . . Some one will find a way out of their difficulty.

Opportunity

MEN do not need more opportunities so much as they need to learn how to take advantage of present opportunities. An opportunity neglected constitutes a rebuke. The human so-called mind often seems so blind that it does not perceive a genuine opportunity. This was illustrated in the case of Hagar, who, with her child, was thirsting for drink in the wilderness. To Hagar's material thought death seemed inevitable. But when an angel, God's message, corrected her thinking by uplifting her vision, Hagar found her need supplied. This is but one illustration of how the claim of evil, if heeded, would blind mortals to their God-bestowed opportunities.

What is an opportunity? It sometimes seems as though this question needed specific definition. It is defined in part in a dictionary as "a time or occasion attended with propitious or favoring circumstances." Have we ever found ourselves in a position where it was impossible to do good—where there was no occasion to do good, for ourselves or others, in the service of God? Surely the opportunity for service is ever available, and is the spirit and essence of all employment. Our main trouble has been in measuring opportunity in terms of self-profit, forgetting that our own need can really be supplied only as we bless others. True service is designed to benefit and bless our fellow men. If this sense of opportunity were grasped and utilized, unemployment would be as impossible as an amalgamation of light and darkness.

Some may claim that their failure was due to a lack of opportunity, thus making opportunity the cause of success and the lack of it the cause of failure. The fact is that opportunity is a state of thought, a natural component of a spiritual, mental condition. Hope, faith, and love offer continuous opportunities, while their suppositional opposites—despair, doubt, and hate—are blind and ignorant and cannot recognize a true opportunity. Only while thought wanders in the morass of material-mindedness does opportunity seem to be blighted. Enlightened thought sees opportunity of one kind or another in every experience.

On pages 232 and 233 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy writes, "There is neither place nor opportunity in Science for error of any sort." Thus we learn that disease, sin, and discord have no opportunity to be expressed because they are not realities but falsities. In Christian Science we find that evil and error, not being derived from God, are without influence or verity.

The law of cause and effect operating through Christian Science supplies an opportunity to accomplish every good work. What greater opportunity could anyone visualize than that offered in the words of Christ Jesus, "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." If thought dwells in God, then all desirable things are possible. It is only erroneous belief that renders obscure the infinite possibilities of man. As we understand the false nature of evil—its powerlessness, even nothingness—all obscurity and ambiguity will vanish, and harmony be discerned as the natural order of being.

Possibility implies opportunity. The occasion for righteous attainment is here and now. Infinite good, the all-knowing Mind, is eternally conscious of all the phenomena of real being. All good is possible because it is the expression of perfect Being. The opportunity to accomplish any good and worthy purpose is God-bestowed.

Why, then, does there seem to be so much lost opportunity, so much failure and disappointment? Mainly because mortals allow their vision to be clouded by evil—fear, envy, jealousy, malice, revenge. We run into disappointment when we seek material rather than spiritual gain. The acceptance of carnal suggestions blinds the vision of mortals. In this wrong state of thought one may not discern the opportunity at hand. Paul saw this when he admonished, "And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind." That is, Allow not your thoughts to wander in mortal or evil ways, but transform your consciousness by thinking spiritual thoughts. We are to do this that we "may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God." In this way only can we fulfill the grand possibilities of real being.

When we cease looking for opportunities from without—from environment, person, place, or thing—and look for them in the realm of true thought, we shall not meet with disillusionment and frustration. The spiritually enlightened thought is in possession of the spiritual faculties which discern distinct and serviceable opportunities.

We always have one opportunity of employment that we seem prone to overlook. It is the opportunity of improving our thinking. When we realize the connection between our thinking and our environment, and discern the true meaning of cause and effect, we shall vigilantly increase our efforts to be faithful to Truth by thinking constructive and spiritual thoughts.—The Christian Science Monitor.

HERE'S A NEW KIND BIRD'S NEST

NEWHALL, Cal., May 18—(CPS)—From now on Dick Lindsey is going to wear his hat.

He left it on the porch the other day, and when he came home at night he found two birds had made a nest in the hat, and had "dug in" for the night.

Lindsey put the hat in the fork of a tree, preferring not to disturb the new family.

California Wine Will Soon Be On Local Sale

Druggists of Truckee and other California cities will soon be selling good California wine—and not at bootleg prices, either.

Such was the prediction made at a legislative committee hearing here, when it was pointed out that two recent developments will permit the legal sale of wine in drug stores. These were:

1. Liberalization of the regulations governing physicians' prescriptions for wine and spirits for medicinal purposes, under which 3 year old California wines such as Chablis, Reisling, Sauterne, Claret and Burgundy will be sold at $10 a case.

2. Approval by the prohibition department of the new wine "tonics" known as Formula No. 4 and No. 6, which are really high quality port and sherry of from 16 to 22 per cent alcohol, to be sold over the counter at drug stores at $1 a pint and $1.50 a quart.

"The new federal regulations permitting the sale of prescription whiskey in case lots, together with the new 'formula wine' have virtually nullified the Eighteenth Amendment already," lawmakers were told by advocates of the proposal calling a state convention to ratify repeal of the federal prohibition act.

"Wholesalers have already announced the prices for 5 year old bonded liquor will be below $1.50 to $1.75, to which, of course, the druggist's profit must be added. No limit has been placed upon doctors in issuing prescriptions to a patient."

Wine sold under the physician's prescription, it was asserted, will not be specially labeled as "formulas," but any kind of wine, produced by bonded wineries. This will be sold at from $1.50 to $4.00 a gallon, it was estimated.

The wine "formulas" pasted on bottles now being sold are: "Alcohol not over 22 per cent. Vitaminized A, B, C, and D. Formula No. 6—Mineralized, contains in easily assimilable form the elementary minerals needed for the upbuilding of the system. Vitaminized with the health-producing vitamins A, B, C, D, under authority of Permit No. N. Y. H. 30-080."

The Golden Text will be: "I beseech you therefore, brethern, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. (Rom. 12:1). Other Bible citations will include: "And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people" (II Cor. 6:16).

The Lesson-Sermon also will include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The material body and mind are temporal, but the real man is spiritual and eternal" (p. 302).

Meanwhile, her competitor, Freda Hedrik, fussed along with her three petticoats, pantaloons, corset cover and old-fashioned black lace corset.

Only women were admitted to the contest, which took place at a local women's store.

MOUNTAIN SHEEP MAY AGAIN ROAM

YREKA, Cal., May 18—(CPS)—Mountain sheep, that roamed in bands over the hills of Siskiyou county in the pioneer days, may be seen in the future, if a plan here materializes.

J. O. McKinney, secretary of the Yreka chamber of commerce, proposes to repopulate the hills with several bands of sheep. This would be in cooperation with the Mt. Shasta Snowmen.

Old-timers say that the county used to be a natural habitat for mountain sheep, but in recent years they became extinct.

LAKE TAHOE REGION

SOUTH END

Mrs. John S. Lawson, who conducts Lawson's Lodge at Tallac, and who has been working in the Senate Chamber at Sacramento all winter, will finish this week and will then go to San Francisco for a vacation, arriving at Tallac on June 1st for the summer business.

Mrs. Lawson was secretary to the speaker of the House during most of the period. It is the Sixth Session she has been connected with.

Mr. Lawson is installing a central hot water plant for all the cabins of his resort. This will eliminate the individual set ups. Mr. Lawson is also planting shrubs and flowers and grass around his cabins, thus making them most attractive. A Dutch Lunch has been added to this resort.

Things down at the South end of the lake seem to be decidedly on the up-trend. A new hot water system has just been installed at the hatchery at Tallac by Mr. Lawson, and he has started a contract for Ziegler's Grove Resort. Ziegler also has a carpenter finishing up his dance hall that is being built out on the lake. There will also be beer and sandwiches served in the dance hall.

NEW RAIL RATES TO HELP SUMMER TOURIST TRAVEL

With the lowest and greatest variety of fares ever authorized, the 1933 summer tourist and vacation travel season will be inaugurated on Monday, May 15, it was pointed out today at local offices of the Southern Pacific Company.

This season both eastbound and westbound summer fares go into effect on the same date and preliminary reports indicate that travel, with the World's Fair at Chicago as the chief attraction, will be greater than for the last year or two.

The railroad travel bargains include special roundtrip 21-day tickets for coach, tourist and first class accommodations, in addition to the usual season tickets good until October 31. New meal service has cut prices more than half in all Southern Pacific dining cars.

Pacific Coast states are expected to benefit greatly from all classes of travel. Residents of eastern states in large numbers, reports indicate, will continue west after visiting the Chicago Fair. Advance reservations also are heavy for westerners planning to visit Chicago and other eastern cities.

Eugene Barton of the Sacramento Junior College spent the week end at his home.
